Natural Golf Finish

After impact, left arm folds at elbow and right arm stays straight.

Club rotates up and finishes in front of body, just to the left of center.

Weight shifts up to left foot and body is supported only by right toe in back.

Finish is similar to conventional golf but club is more in front of body than around the side. More like the finish of a bowler, hands high and in front.

Conventional golfers will think your NG swing has an "incomplete finish". But if you view the videos of Moe Norman's swing, you'll see that both his backswing and follow-throughs are significantly shorter than the conventional swing.
